John Morrison

John,
To a fellow
music critic?
Dick

To the Student Body:

1959! The year of changes and records at K.H.S. is now drawing to a close. As the curtain closes on another school year, work on the year-book is being completed. This book carries the name, El Toro, which you, the student body, chose to give to your yearbook.

The El Toro 1959 portrays the life of the largest body of students in the long history of this school. We of the editorial staff have tried to portray the school year accurately and fully. We hope that you will find this book complete in its coverage of the school year 1958-59.

Sincerely,

Ann Lindsey, Editor

STUDENTS . . .

This book is dedicated to you. You have been through one, two, or three years of reviews, finals, and campus life to become what you are now . . . a senior, a junior, or a sophomore. Your times in K.H.S. have been and always will be enjoyable. This annual, EL TORO 1959, has been assembled so that we all might remember the outstanding events of this past year. It's all yours!

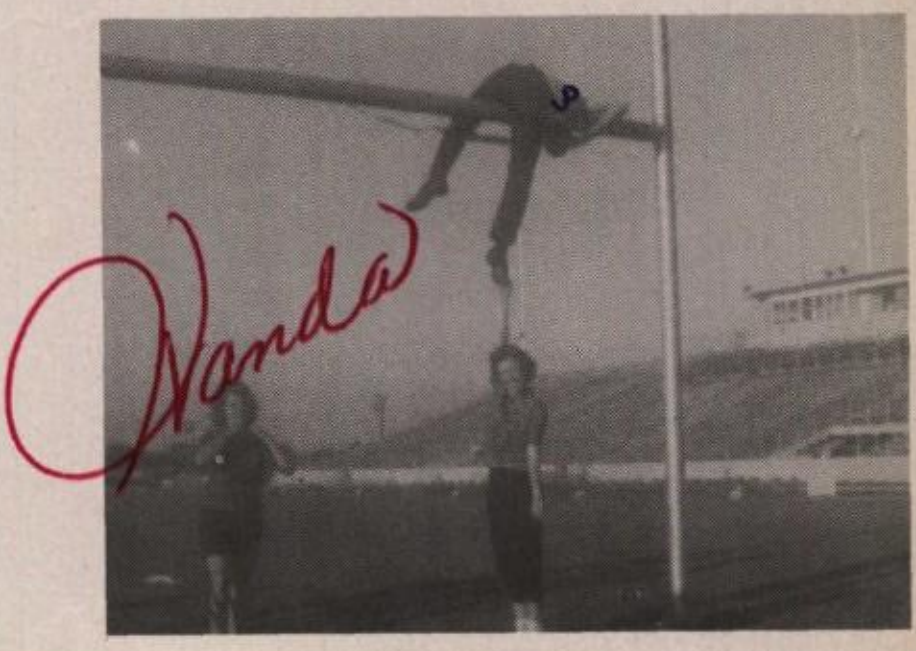
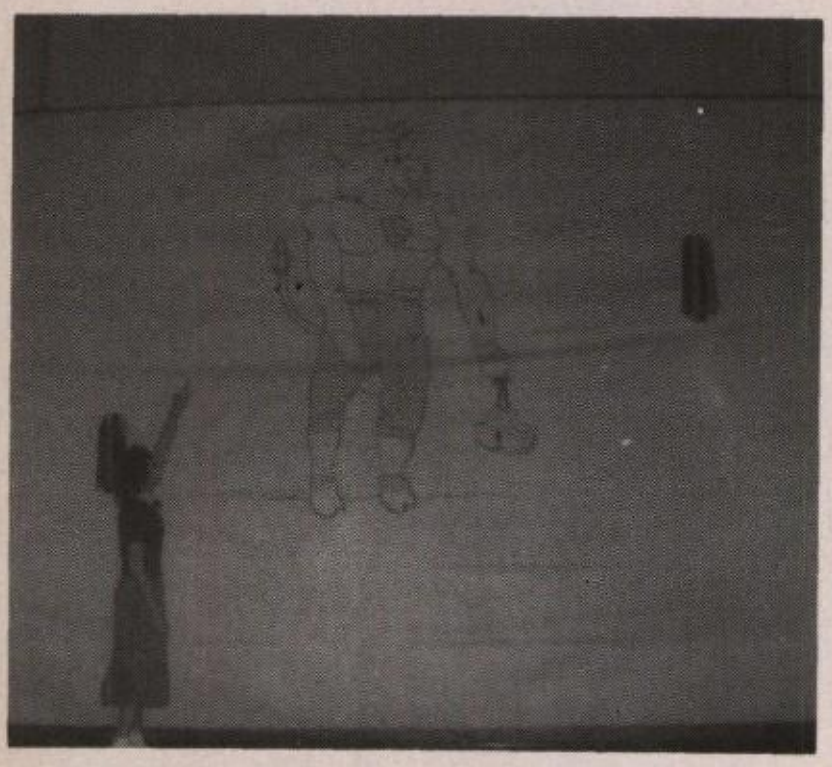
. . . just like two old married people . . .

ıe fire truck was loaded down with students for e pep rally held down town preceding the Falrrias game.

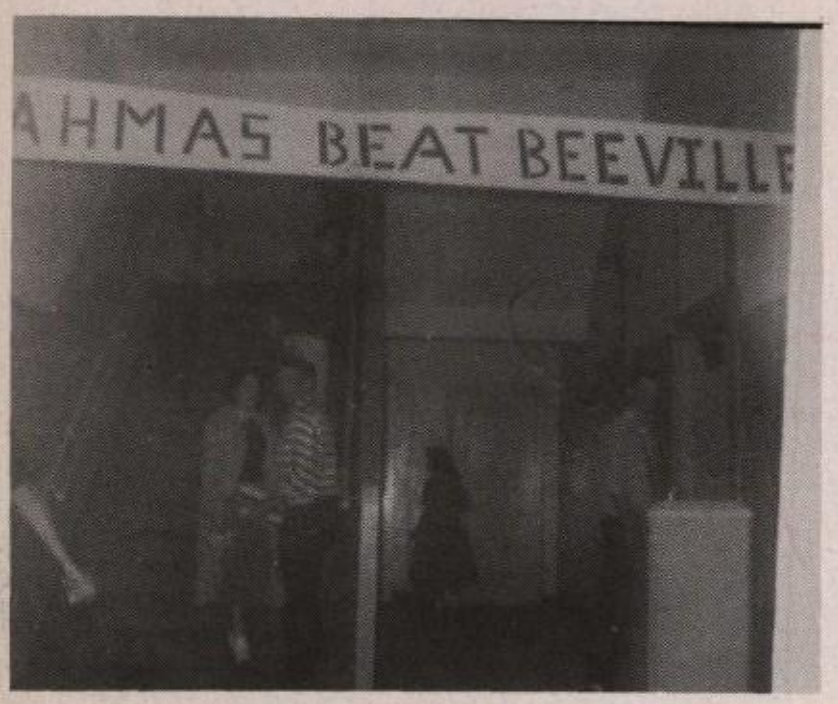


Everyone had a hand in decorating the goal posts, didn't they Phil? He's on top.

The Seniors had a big turn-out on election day at the polls for the election of their class officers.



Kathleen Cumberland points to the Brahma in the gym drawn by Bruce Turner for the Beeville game.



Signs filled all of the halls preceding the Beeville and to raise the spirit for the game. Doug and Kathleen look as if they will have to be raised quite a bit.

Pat, "Fannie," Pat, Ann, Judy, Rita, and Edris ho the cameras many times and again here.

"Doesn't that make sense to you, Mrs. Garrison?"

CHEERLEADER

The cheerleaders portray dramatic roles in the pep rallys.

JAMES HEADS CHEERLEADERS

Elected by the student body in the spring of 1958, King High's cheerleaders, headed by Susie James, have kept the sporting spirit of the school alive.

The cheerleaders are responsible for the pep rallys, decoration of the goal posts, the ribbons before each game, and many other important functions that complete the football season.

Susie James and Alicia Cavazos represent the senior class. Bettsie Isaacs, Carmen Ortegon, and Wanda Trant are the junior's representatives.

As the Brahmas went to State this year, the capable work of these girls was demonstrated throughout each game until the season closed late in December.
